The Aurora

The Aurora has a curtain like shape, the altitude of its lower edges can reach to upwards of seventy miles!

Auroras occur along ring shaped regions around the north and south geomagnetic poles. The colors are created by various gases in the upper atmosphere. Chena Hot Springs Resort is a great place to watch the Auroras due to its location in the northern region and its distance from the city lights.

Auroral intensity varies from night to night and throughout the night. The best viewing tends to be late evening to early morning hours and a slight tendency for more Auroras in the spring and fall.

IN THE BEGINNING

Served 11:30 am until 10:00 pm

Over 100 Years

Chena Hot Springs became famous for curing crippled prospectors of their aches and pains as long ago as 1905. Robert and Thomas Swan had learned that a 1904 U.S. Geological Survey crew had seen steam rising from a valley somewhere on the upper Chena River.

The surveyors concluded that it had been from a hot springs, but did not investigate. Robert Swan, looking for a place where he could ease the pain he suffered from rheumatism, set out in search of the hot springs. Over one month later the two brothers found themselves at the North Fork of the Chena and had to pole their way up that tributary to the mouth of Monument Creek. A short while later they found the hot springs on August 5, 1905.

By 1911, the property boasted a stable, bath-house and twelve small visitor cabins. The resort was on its way to becoming one of the premier resorts of Interior Alaska, and a favorite getaway spot for world-weary residents of Fairbanks.

As the fame spread, Alaska's delegate to Congress, James Wickersham, asked the Department of Agriculture to analyze the waters. The Bureau of Chemistry said that the water was "different from any American hot springs which we have examined."

The principal characteristics of the Chena Hot Spring waters consists of its content of sulfate, chloride and bicarbonate of sodium. In fact, it is very similar to the waters of Felsenquelle, one of the famous springs at Carlsbad in Bohemia.

To this very day, Chena Hot Springs Resort boasts a healthy and beautiful natural environment, continuing to welcome people from all over the world to bathe in the curative powers of its hot waters.

Thinking Green

You may be surprised to hear about the green technology at Chena Hot Springs Resort.

In 1998, we started heating the buildings by utilizing the naturally hot water from the springs; after all, it originates at 156°F. We also use our natural mineral hot springs water in our greenhouse and gardens to help the plants produce better over a longer period of time.

Starting in 2004, we began a geothermal project to generate electricity from the hot springs. This 400-kilowatt geothermal electric system provides a clean renewable energy that puts no harmful emissions into the air.

Geothermal plants operate reliably a higher percentage of time than coal, natural gas or nuclear power plants. This technology can be applied to some of the nearly 150 other hot springs and volcanic areas of Alaska.

Twenty percent of the electricity in Iceland is produced geothermally and 80% from hydrogen. Much has been learned from our northern neighbors. Eventually we hope to produce hydrogen that can be used to operate our equipment and vehicles.

Alaska Grown

We are proud of our Alaska Grown vegetables, herbs and spices that we have grown and use here at Chena.

Whenever possible we try to use locally produced products. It is one of the qualities that makes the food here at Chena Hot Springs Resort taste so good.

Some fun facts about Alaskan agriculture:

- There are 954 acres of farmed vegetables planted each year in Alaska.
- The farm marketing industry in Alaska is a $32 million business. (Down from $52 because the Federal Government used to consider Aquaculture in that figure, now they don't)
- In 2010, more than 16,400 cartons of heads of lettuce, each weighing 48 lbs, were produced on 63 acres of Alaskan soil.
- Of the 79,200 acres of potatoes planted in the United States, 780 acres are in Alaska.
- As of Jan., 2011, the ratio of pigs/hogs to people in Alaska was 1:582
- In 2010, Alaska's milk production totaled 6 million pounds from 600 cows. That's 10,000 pounds per cow!
- The average age of an Alaskan farmer in 1978 was 46.8yrs old. In 2007 it was 56.2yrs old.
- In 2007, 505 out of 686 farms had internet access in Alaska. Of those, only 325 had high speed internet.
- In 2007, 168 farms out of 686 were owned by women.

Chena Hot Springs began with a small test greenhouse in 2004 to explore the challenges of year-round greenhouse production in the extreme Alaska conditions.

Today, utilizing the geothermal water, Chena Hot Springs heats a 7,060 sq ft greenhouse maintaining a 75°F indoor temperature, even when it drops below -50°F . A 125°F difference!

The Resort produces fresh lettuce, tomatoes, and herbs year-round for use in our restaurant.

In partnership with local, state & national entities, Chena Power is developing geothermal and other waste heat resource technologies for use at remote locations throughout Alaska.

TRAIL'S END LOUNGE

A 5% Borough alcohol tax is added to all alcoholic beverages

Party Time

Chena Hot Springs Resort is a great place to hold a company retreat, wedding or family reunion.

It is only sixty miles away from Fairbanks on a scenic highway, making it close enough to drive to, and yet far enough away to enjoy the ambiance of Alaska's wilderness. Moose abound at this quintessential Alaskan resort but you'll also see several varieties of birds, hares, beaver, lynx and occasionally bear. The comforts of home are built in without all the noise and distraction of city life.

Allow Chena Hot Springs Resort to be part of your special moment and we'll help you create unique memories that all who participate will cherish. Whether it is the perfect wedding cake or a retreat where you want to make sure you have success, we can help.

Aurora Ice Museum

The Aurora Ice Museum is by far our most beautiful example of alternative energy technology. It's easy to keep ice frozen in winter but what if you want to keep it cold when it's 80° F and sunny!

While our first attempt in 2004 ended in a melt-down, we tried again the next year. We utilized an absorption chiller design by Energy Concepts Co. This chiller is powered by our geothermal water and is a unique, three-pressure design (the only one like it in the world).

In fact, Chena Hot Springs Resort was awarded Best New Direct Use Geothermal Project from the Geothermal Resource Council.

The Aurora Ice Museum is a great success and nary a drip in sight all summer. We hope you take the opportunity to view this amazing display of ice art. And while you're at it, enjoy an Appletini in your own ice-carved martini glass at our ice bar.
